～10秒後～

I have really enjoyed learning English at this high school for three years. First, there are six English classes every week, so students can get good English skills. My favorite classes are the speaking classes. I like working in a group and talking about many things, for example, "Should students wear school uniforms?" Also, in my second and third years, I took a special English course. In that course, I could practice debate and presentations in English. Second, there are English teachers from the United States of America, England and Australia, and international students from a school in Singapore. There are many chances to use English to communicate with people who aren't Japanese. In fact, when I was in the second grade, one of the international students from Singapore joined my homeroom for five months. I had a good time speaking with him every day. Also, in the summer there is always a trip abroad. Last year, I went on the trip to America for two weeks because I wanted to use English abroad. It was an amazing experience. Finally, I think the English teachers are great because they help us a lot in class. And, if students join contests, for example speech and essay contests, they give us good advice. Also, the Japanese English teachers all speak very good English and have spent lots of time abroad. For example, my homeroom teacher studied in Canada for two years. He told me lots of stories about his life there. The stories really encouraged me to study hard. So, I have decided to study at a foreign university in the future.
