

Categorization of women who engage in compensated companionship

ABSTRACT

This paper is a continuation of my last paper entitled "The communication of "compensated companionship". This paper proposes a categorization of women who engage in compensated companionship (enzyo-kousai), which has not been discussed enough. The categories are (1) deficiency type, (2) pleasure type, and (3) part-time job type. Furthermore, the deficiency type has two sub-categories that consist of AC (Adult Children) type and reconfirmation of sexual appeal type.

The deficiency type is a category of woman who engages in compensated companionship to make up for something missing in her mentality. This type consists of the AC which seeks approval from others, or the sexual appeal reconfirmation type which tries to affirm her physical attractiveness. The pleasure type is a category of woman engaged in compensated companionship to enjoy sex with men and earn money. In the part-time job type, a woman engages in compensated companionship as a good part-time job.

Finally, to develop a generalization of the categories in this paper, the comparative survey using is made other data on prostitution, compensated companionship, and categories of illicit love.
